

Immediate Acuity

When the danger to the person or to others is judged to be high enough that services need to be provided within two hours or less from the time of identification of need. Exception to the length of time to delivery may be made when a response within the two hour time frame is not geographically possible.